Philippians 4:10-13

10 I rejoiced greatly in the Lord that at last you renewed your concern for me. Indeed, you were concerned, but you had no opportunity to show it. 11 I am not saying this because I am in need, for I have learned to be content whatever the circumstances. 12 I know what it is to be in need, and I know what it is to have plenty. I have learned the secret of being content in any and every situation, whether well fed or hungry, whether living in plenty or in want. 13 I can do all this through him who gives me strength.

I Can

We're continuing through Philippians with another message from Paul. I can. These are two powerful words nestled in the middle of scripture. Here, Paul addresses the lesson of being content in our lives. He knows what it is to have a lot and what it is to have a little and yet the secret to being content is not in what we have but that we can do all things through Christ who gives us strength.

Like most scriptures though there is a part of this lesson that rests not on God's shoulders but on ours. These two words, I can, remind us of our own responsibility in the matter. I can go to work, I can drive my car, I can be a good parent, I can.....you can fill in your own analogy. Often though what we say to ourselves is "I can't". When we say "I can't", we close the door to God's blessings and favor in our lives. It says we have no responsibility in the matter and conforms God to some genie who only does the bidding of someone who rubs the lamp. None of this is true. Paul's message is that the circumstances of his life do not determine his outcome or outlook. His belief that he can do all things because of Jesus is the root of his contentment.

The message is twofold. He can but not without Christ. The two do not operate independently from one another but are in sync. I can but only through the power of God. When these are aligned my circumstances are aligned with the will of my Father who works all things for the good of those who love Him. Others may not but in Christ I can.

Keep The Faith,
Pastor Tommy
